By Annabelle T.

Live from Catastrophe at the Silly Rat Umbrella Lending Establishment (And other pointless media), or C.A.T.S.R.U.L.E., here's your current show host, Ratzo!

Ratzo- Hey, hey, hey! It's Ratzo here, live from C.A.T.S.R.U.L.E. stud...hey, who was the Einstein who made this name anyway? The initials spell CATS RULE!

Cat- Well, they do.

Ratzo- Shut up! Well, here's my show, where you can here me talk about good ole' me. Isn't this exciting?

Camera crew- (Whisper) At least he knows sarcasm....

Ratzo- It's true! I'm a very interesting rat, do you hear me? I'm INTERESTING!

Camera crew- Sheesh.

Ratzo- Yeah. Hmm, lets see. Aha! I'll tell you all about how I came to live with my current family of geeks---

Ratzo's mom (A.K.A. editor)- Ratzo, you have to remember that time Snickers saved your life!

Ratzo- Hehehe, sorry, Mom! I'll tell you all about that another time. Now, where were we..ah ye---

Snickers- MEEP!!!

Ratzo- Snickers? What the heck are you doing here? This is my show!

Snickers- Meep meep meep meep meep meep, meep, meep. MEEP!

Ratzo- Uh-huh? Oh, you idiot, your act isn't until Tuseday! TUSEDAY!

Snickers- Meep. (Walks off stage)

Ratzo- Well, now that's over with, let's start that memory. Ah, yes.....

I was reading a clip from the classifids one day, and noticed an ad that rather amused me:

WANTED:

Loveable, stupid, over-afraid, over-protective, too-smart-for-his-own-good, smelly, dirty, germ-freak, or mean rodent. Reward: $20. Please call 1800-RODENT-HOME today is interested.

Hmm. I was too smart for my own good, and was rich enough to be a germ freak. So I packed my bags, quit my job at Microsoft---

Mom- You said you were fired!

Ratzo- I'll explain in another episode. Oh, yeah, then I called the number and said I'll be over there tomorrow, and to pick me up at the train station.

"How will I notice you; you're a rodent!" the ad-poster asked.

I told her that she would see me. And boy, did she see me, all right...
